SPECIAL NOTICE.

TO THE LADIES.—Do you really intend to cease wearing the beautiful styles now so prevalent, or dress less elegantly, because the rebel Jeff. Davis, was captured in Fashionable Female attire? One moment's calm reflection will surely serve to change your rash resolve. The angels had too much good sense to lay aside their pure chaste robes of white, because they had for a time served to hide the deformities of that Prince of Rebels, the Devil. Can you err in following the example of Angels? Then having made up your minds that you will continue to dress tastefully regardless of rebel acts, do not forget to call at the store of the subscribers, who will be happy at all times to furnish you with such articles of dress as you may desire. Urge your fathers, husbands, brothers, neighbors and children to visit the same store. They can here be suited in good articles of Boots, Shoes, Clothing Material, Hats, Caps, Queensware and a general assortment of Groceries, on as reasonable terms as at any House in town. CHRISTMAS CHORAL.

BY DR. W. A MUHLENBURG, OF NEW YORK.

It is seldom that we come across anything more truly poetic, expressive and grand, than the following:

Hark! ye faithful, rouse from sleeping;
Strikes the ADVENT Bell again;
With the Church, go watch, be keeping,
Louder grows her old refrain,
Alleluia! Jesus, come to judge and reign.

Fast flows the tide of ages;
Of its fullness signs appear;
Tokens of the prophet pages,
Seem to tell the COMING near.
Alleluia! Welcome Lord and Saviour dear.

Waxeth cold the love of many;
Waxeth hot the Devil's spite;
Few the steadfast—hardly any
Daring for the True and Right.
Alleluia! Jesus come in thine own might.

List! the seventh trumphet pealing,
While the world keeps on its ways;
Sudden shows the last revealing,
Sudden breaks the DAY of days.
Alleluia! Come when thou wilt, we will praise.

Join their cry, who've gone before us.
Longing for their final doom;
Their and our Redemption's chorus,
Come, Lord Jesus, quickly come.
Alleluia! Even so, Lord Jesus come!

A WOMAN'S "NO."

[From Harper's Weekly.]

"Isn't that the Warburtons' carriage?" asked Tom Otis.

"Yes," replied Gordon.

"Who was in it?"

"Florence, and her admirer, Fred Avery."

"Is Florence Warburton going to marry that atrocious flirt, after having refused the best men in New York?"

Tom Otis was one of those best men who had been refused.

"I don't know; but I scarcely think Fred Avery is much of a marrying man."

"Of course you are going to the Warburtons' ball to-morrow?"

"Oh, of course. Everybody will be there."

"Good-by, then. I stop here—my tailor, you know."

"Oh yes. You'll be there for the rest of the afternoon. But I suppose you'll come out quite new for the ball?"

"Ugh!" groaned Tom Otis, "what can a man wear at a ball that's fit to be seen? We are condemned to a solemn livery like a pack of restaurant waiters."

"A very nice style of dress," said Gordon. "What would you have?"

"Why, colors, of course. Rich velvet coats, and satin breeches, and—"

"Bless me! you'd look like an actor."

"That's better than looking like a man-servant."

"Well, good by to you, once more."

"Opera to-night?"

"I think so. But club afterward, sure."

As these gentlemen separated, the carriage which they had noticed stopped at the door of a handsome house in Thirtieth Street."

"Don't let my dress brush against that dirty wheel," said a light, merry voice from inside the carriage as Fred Avery sprang upon the pavement and extended his hand.

"Oh dear, no. I'd rather be broken on a wheel a dozen times than permit your dress to be soiled against one."

"Any orders, Miss?" asked the coachman, touching his hat.

"Why, let me see," said Miss Warburton. "You will come in with me, will you not, Mr. Avery?"

"Too happy."

"Then the carriage may as well wait for you. Stay here, Jones, and take Mr. Avery wherever he wishes when he leaves here."

The man said nothing, but deliberately getting down off his seat, unfolded a couple of blankets, with which he carefully covered the heated horses.

"In fur a long stay, he is," was the coachman's comment on the length of time he must, in all probability, wait for the conclusion of Mr. Avery's visit.

The coachman must have been a keen observer. Two hours had passed by the coachman's great silver watch, on whose large round face the snowflakes fell as he pulled it out at the moment Fred Avery stepped on the door-step.

"Where shall I take you, Sir, please?" said the coachman, slipping on his India rubber coat over his gray livery—for the snow was now falling thick and fast.

'Um—drive down Broadway till I call to you to stop."

Off they went—down Broadway with a whirl. The horses, chilled with long standing, now dashed on madly to put some warmth in their blood.

Outside, the coachman swung his arms and beat his hands to keep them warm. Inside, Fred Avery, with his feet on the warm fur rug, the lap-robe over his knees, and the collar of his over-coat turned up snugly about his ears, indulged in solliloquy:

"She loves me—loves me dearly! That's plainly to be seen. And I love her—I do indeed. I shall propose to her at once—propose to her, and if she will have me, marry her; and then settle down and stop flirting."

As he spoke he looked out of the window on the hurrying crowd which filled Broadway, and was hastening on through the driving snow. How much more fortunate, he reflected, was he than the generality of people! With a comfortable fortune, an agreeable presence; all these successful flirtations of his could testify to that—and now, best of all, the love of the sweetest, most elegant girl in their set! He would show his gratitude for the many blessings which had been showered upon him by ceasing his frivolous life of flirtation.

Could it be possible that that was Edith Rowson standing there on the corner of Broadway, trying in vain to induce one of the overcrowded stages to stop for her, while the snow fell heavily on her pretty head?

She had not even an umbrella!

Ah! now, this is an exceptional case; and, besides, it need not necessarily be a case of flirtation.

"Driver, stop! There—draw up to that curb where that young lady is standing."

The driver had drawn up before Mr. Avery had quite finished speaking; and before the horses had altogether made up their minds to remain entirely quiescent Fred Avery was on the pavement.

"My dear Miss Rowson," he exclaimed, "who ever would have thought of seeing you out on such a day?"

"On such a day!" returned Miss Rowson, shivering with the cold; "why, the day was fine enough when I came out, not more than a couple of hours ago."

Fred suddenly remembers it was fine enough when he went in with Florence Warburton, and snowing when he came out. He must have staid a good while, he thinks.

"The worst of it is," said Miss Rowson, "all the stages are full, and I can't get home."

"Just step in the carriage and I'll take you home," said Mr. Avery.

She did not require a second invitation. In a blinding snow-storm one is not apt to be squeamish about getting a shelter.

"What is your number now—Madison Avenue?" asked Fred.

She gave it, and he repeated it to the coachman, who, Mr. Avery fancied, looked cross. "As if it were any of his business," said Mr. Avery to himself, with a shrug.

As the carriage rolled smoothly on Edith began to thank him for his kindness in picking her up. It was so good of him, she said; and, by-the-way is this his carriage? How very elegant it is!

No, this is Florence Warburton's carriage, which she has lent him to take him where he wishes.

"Ah!" and Edith Rowson bit her lip and became suddenly pettish.

Little by little it came out. How all the girls say Florence is crazy for love of Fred Avery; and all the gentlemen say that Fred Avery is awfully "spoony" on Florence.

"Spoony, indeed!" ejaculated Fred. "A hateful word! Now, Edith, can you believe a man like me capable of being 'spoony' on any woman?"

His arguments were very convincing. How handsome he was!

Oh dear, here's the house in Madison Avenue. How short the drive has been! Will Mr. Avery come in with her?

Yes, Mr. Avery will. Mr. Avery has much to say to her. He must beg her to deny all those reports. He went in with her, and bade the driver wait for him again.

The driver, thinking this would only be a short stay, was careless enough not to trouble himself to cover the horses. But when three quarters of an hour had passed, and evening came, and the snow kept falling faster and faster, the driver made his horses and himself as comfortable as possible under the uncomfortable circumstances.

At length Fred Avery came out. He had had two or three glasses of wine, and being of a temperament easily affected by the spirituous, the intellectual was not so clear as it might have been.

"Drive to the club!" he said, huskily, and puffing a breath laden with wine-odor straight in the coachman's face. "Drive there, and hurry—then you can go!"

At the club he was again "chaffed" for his penchant for Florence. He denied it stoutly, with another bottle open before him, and half of its contents flown from his stomach to his head.

And yet, spite of his tipsiness, spite of the stuff he is talking, Florence Warburton was the only woman Fred ever loved.

Back at the house the coachman was desirous of knowing whether Miss Florence had any further orders; and, while seeking that knowledge, he also took occasion to impart some which was not altogether pleasant knowledge for Florence.

She learned of Mr. Avery's having found a lady in the street whom he took home, and with whom he staid a long, long time. The number and the street of this house being given her, she recognized the residence of Edith Rowson, who was known to be as desperate a flirt feminine as Fred Avery's reputation made him a flirt masculine.

The next day was the day of her ball. Fred did not come to see her. But it was just as well. She was so busy; and, besides, he would be sure to come early to the ball in the evening.

He came very late. Tom Otis and his friend Gordon had been there dancing away for two hours. At length he came, and Florence met him in the hall-way.

"You are late," she said, coldly.

"Yes; a fellow from the West whom I was obliged to dine, and couldn't get rid of afterward. Ah! Florence," he whispered in her ear, and meant it too, deeply, "how dearly I love you!"

Her frame quivered with delight, for she loved him with every fibre of her being.

Fred entered the ball-room, and the first person he saw was Edith Rowson. Witching little creature! How piquante she looked, in her clouds of tulle and her coral ornaments! He instantly remembered that she was engaged to him for the first dance.

The first dance, and the second, and the third! Are they engaged to each other for all the dances? Florence looked at them with amazement. With her head and her heart throbbing with acutest pain, she whispered to her mother that she was so ill she must go up stairs, but there need be no cessation of the festivities.

Up stairs her maid met her and caught her in her arms just as she was on the point of falling.

"Why, Miss," she said, "how pale you look! Sha'nt some one go for the doctor?"

No; no doctor. Miss Warburton says no doctor can help her.

In the morning Fred Avery reviewed his conduct with supromest disgust.

"Was I insane to act as I did? Is there a fatality which drives me from the woman I love to a woman who is nothing to me—whom I despise—loathe—as I do myself?"

He shuddered with disgust.

"But I will see her," he said; "tell her I love her—love her dearly—in spite of all my folly. She loves me, I know. She will not refuse to see me."

He went at once to the house. Miss Warburton was too ill to see any one. Days passed; she was still ill.

"I will write to her," he said at last. He wrote this note, and sent it:

"OH MY DARLING,—Can you forgive my folly—wickedness? Will you marry me? Answer, if but one word."

The answer came very promptly. It was but one word:

"NO."

No more flirting now for Fred Avery. No; but there is Lethe in the wine-cup, as there is oblivion in opium-eating.

Down, down he goes, sinking steadily from one grade to another until he has reached the lowest. But long before this stage his former friends have cut him, and in the fashionable circle, where he was once a brilliant light, his name is almost forgotten.

Mrs. Warburton wondered if her daughter had forgotten it. She knew Fred Avery once proposed to Florence, and that she rejected him.

"Do you think Florence ever loved him?" asked Florence's aunt of her sister, Mrs. Warburton.

"Never. She never mentions his name, and she wrote 'No' to him when he proposed to her."

One day they were at breakfast, and they read in the morning paper of a handsome young man who, crossing Broadway in a state of intoxication, was knocked down by a heavy truck and killed.

"What name?" asked Florence.

"Frederick Avery."

Florence said nothing further.

They ordered the carriage and went out.

She went through the routine of visiting and shopping and visiting galleries of paintings and a matinee at the Opera. But every where she sat off alone, and said nothing.

"Do you think she could have loved him?" asked the mother now, in turn, of the aunt.

"I can not say," she replied.

In less than a month Florence was stricken with a fever.

"Is there no hope, doctor?" came the mother's last agonizing question.

"No. There is no hope. Frame too emaciated by a previous, silent wasting away to resist this hot tyrant of a typhoid."

An anniversary came, and found Florence still alive. It was the anniversary of the ball which took place five years ago.

Just as the clock pointed to the hour when Fred Avery came that night, so late, and meeting Florence in the hall-way, whispered in her ear "How dearly I love you!" she turned to her mother and said:

"Mother!"

"Yes, dear."

"Mother, good by. Come, dry your tears. Kiss me good-by, dear mother I am dying!"

That night she died, whispering:

"Bury me by his side."

AN INDIGNANT WOMAN.—Some "horrid wretch" having ventured on the opinion that "a woman who loves unsought, deserves the scorn of the man she loves," is shot dead by the following from a lady correspondent:

"Heaven forgive me! but may the man who penned that never see another bonnet! May no white, dimpled arms ever encircle his cravat, or buttons vegetate on his shirt. May no rosy lips ever press his moustache, and the fates grant that his dicky strings break short off every morning. May no woman's heart ever learn to beat faster—except with indignation—at the mention of his name, and may his stockings always need darning.

And when his nerves are unstrung by disease, and his head throbs with pain, as though an earthquake were brewing in it, may we have nothing in his sick chamber but boot heels, and see not one inch of muslin or crinoline.

Give her love unasked! O, with a true-hearted man this would, methinks, be the reason of reasons why he should love her. She gives to him her whole heart—for in these things woman does not work by halves—not from gratitude, because he loves her; not from pity or charity, because he has begged it of her; but because—because—dear me! it will take more of a philosopher than I am to account for the undeniable fact that woman do sometimes love the horrid creatures called men.

☞Reader, did you ever enjoy the ecstatic bliss of courting? You didn't! Then you had better get a little Gal-an-try.

☞Why is a young man reclining on the bosom of his wife like a fellow indulging in a spree? Because he is on a bust.

Reconstruction and its Enemies—The Disturbing Element in the Republican Party.

[From the New York Times, [Republican.]

Wendell Phillips was not far wrong when, with the fate of impeachment before his eyes, he affirmed the presence of conflicting elements in the Republican party. He was evidently right, too, when, in the same connection, he predicted the renewal of an attempt on the part of the extremists to control the Republican policy, and to engraft upon it views at variance with the scheme of reconstruction now in progress.

The current reports of interviews held within the last few days by Southern deputations, black and white, with sundry leaders of the extreme faction, afford a timely illustration of the forces which are at work to prevent the restoration of the Union. They show that the Southern opponents of the law who meet in Conservative Conventions and bewail the departure from the cardinal article of their faith—that "this a white man's government"—are not the only or the most dangerous foes of the pacification which the country most anxiously awaits. They prove that whatever be the result of pending operations in the excluded States, the finality of the scheme is threatened by politicians who do battle under the Republican standard, and who will renew in Congress the delays and disturbances which have already been so productive of mischief.

According to the statements transmitted from Washington through different but in the main concurrent channels, Messrs. Sumner, Stevens, and Butler severally declare themselves dissatisfied with the alleged moderate character of the present law, and counsel the Southern deputations who call on them for "advice" to adopt more proscriptive measures. Thus, Mr. Sumner advises the conventions yet to be held to widen the disfranchising clauses of the Congressional plan, and to impose disabilities which would have the effect of excluding the great body of Southern intelligence from participation in the Government. Mr. Butler favors, substantially, the same course. Mr. Stevens, as usual, is not behind either. He would allow a bare majority of those who vote to determine the matters submitted to them—instead of a majority of the registered voters, as required by law. He proposes to increase the Congressional representation by allowing to the two fifths hitherto excluded, members to be voted for on a general ticket or as Congressmen at large; and he contemplates the organization of provisional governments, to be established by the conventions, and to take the place of the district commanders. This last proposition is intended to secure the existence of "loyal governments" to rule the States in which the measures of the Conventions may be voted down or otherwise defeated, and is a foretaste of what gentlemen like Mr. Hunter may expect as the alternative of "negro rule" under the law as it stands. Mr. Stevens clings, moreover, to his old idea of "mild confiscation;" and Mr. Butler suggests that for the better securing the supremacy of the "loyal element" the disfranchised class shall be debarred participation in the management of banks, rail roads, or other chartered commercial enterprises. To crown the whole, Mr. Sumner insists that the problem of nationality which he has striven profoundly to elucidate, shall be solved by the enactment of a political rights bill, making political co-extensive with civil rights in all the States of the Union.

It is not easy to speak with patience of projects so obviously at variance with the policy of the Republican party, so injurious to the country, or so calculated to add to the dangers and difficulties of the South. And yet nothing is gained by refusing to look at plans and propositions which indicate the purposes, and throw some light upon the probable tactics, of the faction whose confidences are shared by Messrs. Sumner, Stevens, and Butler in common with the special contributor of the Anti-Slavery Standard. The folly and enormity of what these persons propose is not a reason for passing it over unnoticed. The spirit it reveals cannot be safely disregarded, since its influence will be felt, immediately, throughout the South, and again in Congress when the question shall come up for final adjustment.

The first effect will perhaps be the worst. There can be no doubt that the absence of faith in the finality of the Constitutional Amendment, contributed not a little to the failure of that measure in the Southern Legislatures. They declined to acquiesce in unpalatable conditions, which, after all, might not be the ultimatum of the National Government. The distrust was, in our judgment, unfounded, and the refusal unwise, but we must nevertheless admit the plausibility of the reasoning in which both originated. A similar argument against the Reconstruction law is now furnished by the extremists; though the effect may not be so distinctly traceable—the tendency is unquestionably the same. It will put a powerful weapon in the hands of those who dwell upon the bad faith of Congress as a motive to opposition. On the more violent members of the Conventions the influence will be still more mischievous. From the Carolinas and from Virginia they have sent to Washington to learn the views of politicians who claim to be considered leaders. The trio whose extravagances now come before us have been visited for this purpose, and their opinions will be reported to the Conventions with all the weight of gospel. The delegates who reached Washington in search—it may be an honest search—after information, go back to Richmond and the Carolinas assured that the action of the Conventions can not be too extreme for Congress. In this manner, strength will be imparted to the demand for proscriptive measures, to the delight and profit of the demagogues and incendiaries with whom "loyal" pretenses are a cover for outrage.

Nor can the Republican party afford to be indifferenent to these exhibitions of the temper which animates its extreme members. We do not apprehend that Mr. Sumner, or Mr. Stevens, or Mr. Butler will be more potent when the time for revising the work of reconstruction shall arive than they were when the law was passed. Harsh as it is, it had been much worse were they able to dictate the course of the party. They were beaten then, however, as signally as they have since been beaten on the subject of impeachment; and we believe that they will not appear to better advantage when they shall attempt to fasten their fanatism and intoleranco on States seeking admission under law. But, notwithstanding their numerical weakness—notwithstanding the fact that they are a mere corporal's guard compared to the great army of Republicans—their projects, so impudently paraded and so persistently renewed, entail disaster and disgrace upon the party with which they are unfortunately allied. It suffers in every respect from their proceedings. A regard for its own usefulness and welfare, then, not less than for the interests of the South and the honor of the country, seems to suggest the most summary disposal which the practice of Congress permits of whatever measures they introduce for giving effect to their disorganizing policy. The appointment of a Reconstruction Committee in the House, with Mr. Stevens at its head, opens the door to nuisances of this nature, and we may expect to hear of them often. But the duty of the ruling party is clear. It cannot, without imperilling its power, even entertain the propositions which the Sumners and Stevens and Butlers of Congress stand ready to introduce; nor can it without dishonor lend encouragement to those who in its name are plotting for supremacy and for office in the Southern States. It may not, perhaps, be politic to proclaim in advance a readiness to be more liberal than the law; but the party does owe to itself and to the people who repose confidence in the capacity of its statesmanship, such a display of firmness and moderation as shall free it from the suspicion of complicity with the violence which assails its peace and endangers its unity.

OLD SCENES.—We believe there is oftentimes as much pain as pleasure in revisiting old scenes. For what has once gone by can never be seen again, and we return not to the old haunts with the feelings with which we left them. We find the old picture changed; new figures are painted in, or old painted out. It does look quite like the original it does not quite come up to the image that has dwelt with us since we left it, and with the throb of pleasure comes a touch of pain, or an undefined pang.

It may be different in extreme old age, when time has to a certain extent blunted the feelings and bridged over the gulf that roars and foams between our childhood and latter days. When the silver cord is nearly loosened, and as we draw nearer the shores of the great kingdom, we become again as little children; our minds purified from the dross that clogs them on the battle field of life, our weapons laid aside, and the evening time is flooded with a gentle light, a soft light, soft and mellow like a delicious autumn day; the sun has lost its burning heat, and shines steadily and mildly; and by the aid of those chastened rays we perhaps see more clearly than we could when the noontide light was dazzling us; the shadows then melt into the landscape, and they are not so hard or so defined. There is a hush and in that hush we look upon the past calmly and trustingly. Wild regrets are silenced, hot tears have ceased to flow, heart wounds are healed; for the life dream is coming to a close and will soon fade away in the joyful waking to eternity.

A FROG STORY.—A writer in Science Gossip says: "A near neighbor, upon whose veracity I can rely, recently opened a drain in Kent, when he made the following discovery: At the mouth of the drain were placed two large stones, in measurement nearly two ft. square and 3 inches thick; the one at the top rested closely upon the one beneath. Upon lifting it from the lower stone, the skeletons of five frogs were discovered; they were in a circle in centre of the stones, quite flat. Upon taking one of them up and holding it to the light, there was only a thread like appearance of bones between the dry, flattened and fleshless skins; these skins were clear and beautifully marked. In this state they were seen by several persons, and by each of them the frogs were thought to be dead; but when the water commenced to flow over them there was a slight gasping perceived in the throats of each, and by degrees the bodies swelled, and life and motion returned. Then, to the surprise of the beholders, the frogs sprung up and ran away into the drain. How did these frogs get beneath the stone that covered the lower one closely? There was no space for them to enter or depart, and upon the surface there was not the slightest indentation made by the frogs. It was supposed to be thirty years ago that the stones were placed over the drain."

HARD WINTER ON THE POOR.—In every direction we hear of iron works, cotton factories and woolen mills stopping work, throwing thousands of hands out of employment.

☞General Grant is too great a smoker himself, to be smoked out by the politicians. The leading Radicals at Washington—those who contend that Republicanism means negro political rights to the fullest extent—are watching the General closely, and they say that they have not yet been able to discover, by any word or act of his, that he is in favor of their radicalism. As the General has stood, and now stands, the people are very willing to accept him. He cannot be claimed as a candidate of any one party. He has not committed himself as a partisan of either the Republican or Democratic parties, and we would not be surprised if the Democratic National Convention would be the first to nominate him. If General Grant should be elected, we believe he would act independent of the influence of the party leaders of the prominent parties now in existence, and in so acting he could not fail to give almost universal satisfaction and speedily restore our country to peace and prosperity. The reform the General has already introduced into the War Department since the removal of Stanton, would be of itself enough to make him popular with the people, and we have no doubt he will continue in the good work, even should the opposition to it be strengthened by the influence of politicians hanging around Washington. Gen. Grant is no party man, he has no party friends to reward or party enemies to punish. Party names are nothing, principles everything, with General Grant.

Important Railroad Suit.

A suit involving questions important both to the public and to railroad companies, has recently been tried in Cambria county, and is noticed in all the Johnstown and Ebensburg newspapers. It will be remembered that upon the occasion of President Johnson's journey from Pittsburgh to Harrisburg, a very large crowd of persons assembled at the station of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Johnstown. The platform at that station consisted in part of a trussed bridge extending over and about twenty feet above the former bed of the canal. The train upon its arrival drew past the usual place of stopping so that the President could address the people from the rear platform of the hindmost car. The crowd rushed after the cars, and upon that portion of the platform over the old canal. Under this pressure it gave way, and some three or four hundred people were injured by the fall; several were killed, and many permanently injured. Some two hundred suits were brought against the railroad company by the injured parties to recover damages, and their aggregate claims would exceed a million of dollars. The case tried was David Gillis against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, and was considered a test case, and occupied all of the second week of the late term of Court. Messrs. Johnston, Kopelin, and McGlaughlin were counsel for the Plaintiffs, and Messrs. Scott and Pershing for the Railroad Company. Judge Taylor decided the case upon the legal questions raised in it, and directed a verdict for the defendant.

That we may not misstate the effect of his decision we requested one of the counsel to furnish us with the points ruled, and are informed that the case was disposed of in effect upon the two following points presented by Defendant's counsel, both of which were answered affirmatively by the Court, viz:

First. That there is no evidence showing that Plaintiff was either a passenger upon Defendant's railroad, or at their station for the purpose of becoming one, or that he stood in any such relation at the time of his alleged injury, as to impose upon the Defendant the discharge of any duty towards him, and therefore the verdict must be for the Defendant.

Second. A Railroad Company discharges their duty by having at their passenger station a platform safe and sufficient for conducting the ordinary business of their road, and the undisputed evidence offered by both parties showing that such platform was provided at the Johnstown station, and that it was broken down by an extraordinary crowd of persons not passengers, and not there for the purpose of becoming passengers, of whom the Plaintiff was one, he is not entitled to recover for any injury sustained by such accident, and the verdict must be for Defendant.

We learn from the Cambria papers that the case will be taken to the Supreme Court. If this decision is sustained there, it will dispose of all the cases, and give us all to understand that if we go into large crowds at railroad stations to gratify curiosity, we do it at our own risk.

The Philadelphia North American, (Republican,) thinks that Mr Stanton has been materially damaged by the President's Message, giving the reasons for suspending him, and expresses the opinion that his restoration by the Senate under present circumstances is out of the question.

TERRIBLE RAILROAD DISASTER.—One of the most frightful accidents occurred on the Lake Shore Railroad near Angola, above Buffalo, N. Y. on the 18th inst. The last car of the New York Express train, filled with fifty passengers, men, women and children, was thrown over an embankment of some fifty or sixty feet and foremost. A Buffalo paper says:

It is easy to imagine the frightful wreck to which the car was reduced by its terrible descent. All, or nearly all its passengers, of course, were precipitated into a mangled, struggling mass at the lower end of the car, buried under a heap of ruins, and even the slightly injured, if any there were, unable to extricate or help themselves. The horror of the situation was sufficient without that which instantly became added by the igniting of the splintered wreck from the overturned stoves. A moment, as one of the three sole survivors describes it, and the whole was wrapped in flames. The dry wood of the car burned like a heap of kindling; and it was little more.

Who can attempt to depict the unimaginable horror of the scene that ensued? Nearly fifty human beings being roasted either in death, or in the pangs of dying from horrible wounds, or in the full vigor of life, buried in an inextricable position and committed to the flames without hope of rescue! The shrieks, the groans, the imprecations—let those who heard them forget this side of eternity if they can.—How many the flames devoured in this car cannot be told with certainty. It was well filled with passengers, probably—says one of the survivors, not less than fifty, and only three escaped.

☞"There is no middle ground between Radicals and Democracy." So says Forney in his Press of Saturday. If we are to judge from the opposition of the Radicals to General Grant as their candidate we must come to the conclusion that he occupies the middle ground—and further, it is universally agreed that the people occupied the middle ground in the results of the fall elections. If what Forney says is true, then those Republicans who are opposed to negro political equality must go over to another extreme. We don't believe Forney. We believe the middle ground is General Grant—and just where Gen. Grant has stood, and now stands.

Important from Washington.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18, 1867.

The House took up Thad Stevens' supplemental reconstruction bill, and passed it. The third section, increasing Congressional representation in the South, was stricken out, and the bill as passed provides that a majority of those voting on the question shall call a Convention, and that Congressmen shall be voted for when the people vote on ratifying the new Constitution.

In the debate, Mr. Brooks, of New York, spoke an hour in drawing historical parallels between the negro and white race, and declared that this was the last time on which he expected to speak before a white audience on the floor of the House, for he said in a few weeks negroes would come down from the galleries and be representatives in Congress.

Thad Stevens replied in a ten minutes speech, in which he offered to put Fred Douglass and Langston against Brooks for the championship of the United States. All of the Republican members gathered around Mr. Stevens during his remarks.

Dec. 21.—Intimations are held out in the evening papers that a movement is on foot among the Southern radicals to get up another Presidential Convention, on the ground that the Southern States will not be represented in Congress by the 20th of May and that, therefore, they will be unable to send delegates to the Chicago Convention. The new movement is represented as being in the interest of Judge Chase.

[The financial question was discussed for two or three days without coming to any definite action.

Congress adjourned on the 20th to the 6th of January.]

The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger says: As a matter of news of general interest, the the fact may be stated that some of the more prominent Democrats here are urging the National Executive Committee to issue the call for the Democratic Convention to nominate candidates for President and Vice President, so as to make it precede that of the Republicans at Chicago; and from what I learn to-day, it is safe to say that the request will be taken into favorable consideration. Such a proceeding, it is thought by those who favorit, would be a good stroke of policy, especially if the Convention should nominate Grant. In that case it is argued the wind would be completely taken out of the Republican sails, as that party would then have no available candidate of their own to fall back upon.

☞Those of our patrons who gave us a friendly call during the past two weeks in response to our requests, will please accept our thanks. We expect to hear from all soon who have or may receive "tickets." Those who may not receive "tickets," and know themselves to be indebted, will also please give us a call.

A Happy Christmas and New Year to All.

We wish all our patrons, great and small, rich and poor, Democrat, Republican, Radical, Conservative, &c., &c., &c., and the rest of mankind, all a happy time during the Holidays.

☞William Edward Hutchinson, who for some years has been the publisher of the Ebensburg Alleghanian, died in Ebensburg, on the 19th inst., in the 20th year of his age. He was a promising young man, and his loss is sorely felt in that community.

It is said the Committee on Ways and Means find that the Government ought to receive as whisky tax $305,573,400, whereas the actual receipts were only $28,000,000. Estimating the product from the capacity of the stills in operation, the Government ought to have received $1,260,000,000.

Opinions of the Press.

The coming Political Revolution at Home

[From The New York Herald, (Independent Republican.)

It is clear that the Republicans still remain resolved upon carrying out their reconstruction policy at the South and will persist in their efforts to bring the Southern States back into the Union under the political control of the brutalized and ignorant negro population, in order that they may add to the strength of their party in the approaching Presidential election.

Under these circumstances we predict the culmination in November next of the political revolution of which we have already felt the first shock. From all the symptoms that surround us it is easy to foresee that the violence and folly of Congress, in forcing upon the country a policy entirely foreign to our institutions, and in conflict with all our ideas of freedom, justice, and generosity, will unite the people upon the Democratic and Conservative nominee for the next Presidency, and that he will be elected by a large majority. The radicals may hope to save themselves by calling to their aid the great name of General Grant; but if that distinguished military leader should accept a nomination upon the African supremacy platform of the present Congress, he will be defeated at the polls as easily as Chase or any other candidate would be. The principles that agitate the country at the present time are stronger than men, and no personal popularity can for an instant blind the eyes of the people to the importance of the issue. The reconstruction policy to which the radical party promises to adhere is an atrocious outrage upon civilized society. It degrades the white race, and, by giving political power into the uncontrolled possession of hundreds of thousands of ignorant and debased negroes, breaks down all the safeguards of society, obliterates the progress of half a century, reduces ten States of the Union to a condition of African barbarism, and demoralizes the national Government. It is against this policy that the people will record their votes, and it is to save the country from these evils that they will defeat the radical Presidential candidate next fall, whoever he may be.

We do not believe that Gen. Grant will consent to represent such a party or such a policy in the important canvass of next year. He is shrewd and sagacious, and as he begins to comprehend the coming revolution he is indicating through his nearest friends his unwillingness to stand upon such a platform as the radicals are preparing for him. In this he is right. The election of 1868 would be but a repetition of that of 1852, although on a broader and grander scale. Scott, a popular and renowned soldier, was defeated by the almost solid vote of the Union—four States only casting their electoral vote for him, although his opponent was a New Hampshire nonentity, unfit for the position, without any political reputation in his own State, and unknown to the country. The overthrow of the radical negro supremacy candidate next year will be as complete as that of the Whig nominee in 1852. It is to be hoped that General Grant may be spared the pain of such a defeat, and the conservatives and Democrats may put before the country a more desirable man than poor Pierce. In proportion as their success is assured they owe it to the nation to present none but a patriot and statesman for the suffrages of the people.

General Hancock.

[From The New York Times.]

The prudence and patriotism with which General Hancock is administering the affairs of his department attest the wisdom of President Johnson in displacing his predecessor. General Grant's intemperate remonstrance was more creditable to the fidelity of his friendship than to the soundness of his judgment. While Sheridan was in command the department was never quiet. That meddlesome officer resembled the unfortunate people who never have good neighbors. He found himself under a constant necessity of doing strong acts; and the protests against his removal assumed that the department was so full of turbulent, mutinous spirits that only his vigorous hand could hold them in subjection. But when he left, the rebellious spirits seemed to depart with him, as the peace of a neighborhood is restored when the unfortunate family that always has bad neighbors moves away General Sheridan's removal, which it was asserted, before it took place, would make him the next President, is much more likely to confer that honor upon his successor, if General Hancock continues to evince the consummate civil prudence he has thus far exhibited. It bids fair to place him among the small number from whom the Democratic candidate will be selected, while Sheridan's supposed claims have gone into a total eclipse.

For our part, we hope that a statesman of large civil experience may be run by both parties. We are not likely to need military abilities; or if we should, the Presidential mansion is not a fit place for the headquarters of a fighting army. Great measures of civil policy and administrative reform should stand in the foreground under the next President. There is no fitness in choosing a more military man to discharge duties requiring great civil experience. But if the Republicans attempt to sway the canvass by the eclat of a military name, it may be expedient to neutralize the effort by putting a popular name into the other scale. If this necessity should be forced upon us, an accidental advantage may result from the Republican reconstruction scheme by affording a field to test the civil capacity of one of our most admired and meritorious soldiers.

The standing electioneering calumny of the Republicans, that every man who disapproves of their negro policy is a Rebel at heart, recoils against its authors when levelled at so bright a reputation as General Hancock's. For loyalty, gallantry, zeal, services, activity, and the solid value of his services, there was no officer in the Union army, who, with equal opportunities, left so shining a record. If he had ever had a separate command, he might have acted a more prominent, but he could not easily have acted a more brilliant part.

General Grant's Letter.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.

The Speaker laid before the House to-day about one hundred pages of written foolscap correspondence relating to the removal of Secretary Stanton and Generals Sheridan and Sickles, in accordance with the resolution of the House. The following is the celebrated private letter written by General Grant, which is among the papers, and is now published for the first time:

Headquarters of the Armies of U. S.
Washington, D. C., Aug. 1, 1867.

His Excellency Andrew Johnson, President of the United States.

SIR: I take the liberty of addressing you privately on the subject of the conversation we had this morning, feeling, as I do, the great danger to the welfare of the country should you carry out the designs their expressed. First, on the subject of the displacement of the Secretary of War. His removal cannot be effected against his will without the consent of the Senate. It is but a short time since the United States Senate was in session, and why not then have asked for his removal if it was desired? It certainly was the intention of the legislative branch of the Government to place Cabinet ministers beyond the power of Executive removal, and it is pretty well understood that, so far as Cabinet ministers are affected by the Tenure of Office Bill, it was intended especially to protect the Secretary of War, whom the country felt great confidence in. The meaning of the law may be explained away by an astute lawyer, but common sense and the views of loyal people will give to it the effect intended by its framers.

Second: On the subject of the removal of the very able commander of the Fifth military district, let me ask you to consider the effect it would have upon the public. He is universally and devotedly believed by the people who sustained this government through its trials, and feared by those who would still be the enemies of the government. It fell to the lot of but few men to do as much against an armed enemy as General Sheridan did during the rebellion; and it is within the scope of the ability of but few in this or any other country to do what he has.

His civil administration has given equal satisfaction. He has had difficulties to contend with which no other district commander has encountered. Almost, if not quite, from the day he was appointed district commander, to the present time, the press has given out that he was to be removed, and that the administration was dissatisfied with him. This has emboldened the opponents to the laws of Congress within his command, to oppose him in every way in their power, and has rendered necessary measures which otherwise may never have been necessary.

In conclusion, allow me to say as a friend desiring peace and quiet, the welfare of the whole country, North and South, that it is in my opinion, more than the loyal people of the country, I mean those who supported the government during the great rebellion, will quietly submit to, to see the very man, of all others, whom they have expressed confidence in, removed. I would not have taken the liberty of addressing the executive of the United States thus but for the conversation on the subject alluded to in this letter, and from a sense of duty, and feeling that I know I am right in this matter.

With great respect, your obedient servant. U. S. GRANT, General.

At the time the removals were made it was feared they would seriously derange reconstruction and create confusion in the management of the War Department, but the change in the War Department has saved to the country hundreds of thousands of dollars, and reconstruction goes on as satisfactorily now as then.

The Philadelphia Post, Radical, speaking of Gen Grant's letter says:

"We rejoice in this letter, so manly and straightforward, with its ringing words at the end—"I know that I am right." And if Gen. Grant was right four months ago, on the questions with which the letter deals, we believe that he is not wrong now. But it will not do to assume that the obedience of a citizen to the laws, the loyalty and the courage of a soldier, mean necessarily the Radicalism of a Presidential candidate. Honor the men who faithfully execute the laws of their country in spirit as well as letter. Honor Sheridan for what he did in New Orleans, but do not forget that Sheridan himself has said—"if a Democratic Congress had made the laws, I should have carried them out as earnestly." As the General of the Army, Grant is firm in the faith that the last embers of rebellion must be trampled out in the South. He sustained Sheridan in removal of rebels from office, and recommended, in strong language, that martial law should be declared in Texas. But in none of these letters do we find his Republicanism affirmed. We do not yet know whether he would stand upon a Radical platform. That he is brave and loyal we knew well before these letters were given to the public, but some thing more than this is needed to satisfy Radical Republicans before they endorse his nomination for the Presidency. There are loyal men in all parties, but the Republican party is pledged to elect a Republican."

More First Premiums

Have been awarded to Fairbanks Standard Scales, than to all others combined. The opinion of the world in their favor was confirmed by their receiving the highest premiums at the Paris Exposition.

It is reported that severe distress among the whites and negroes of the South, especially the latter, is anticipated during the winter. The freedmen are being discharged in large numbers by their employers on account of a scarcity of food and means, and starvation, in many instances, is actually at the doors of both whites and blacks.

Teachers' Convention.

The Huntingdon County Teachers' Institute, assembled pursuant to public notice, in one of the public school rooms, on Tuesday last, at 2 o'clock P. M.

The meeting was called to order by Superintendent Tussey. Prayer was offered by Prof. A. L. Guss, of Cassville. A. H. Kauffman was appointed Secretary in chief, with J. S. White, and H. H. Swoope, assistants. After the enrollment of the teachers present, a committee on permanent certificates was elected as follows: W. H. Sheeder, Miss Ellen A. Glazier, P. M. Sangree, S. P. McDivitt, and Samuel Fleming.

The County Superintendent then introduced to the Convention, W. W. Woodruff, Esq., County Superintendent of Chester County, who addressed the teachers on the subject of the importance and value of Institutes. His remarks throughout were well timed and eminently practical. The Institute then adjourned to meet in the Court House in the evening.

Evening Session.—Met at 7 o'clock. An Essay was read by A. H. Kauffman. Subject—"The Teachers' Duty."

S. T. Brown, Esq., being introduced, addressed the Convention on the subject of teaching, and matters pertaining to education generally. His remarks were well timed, earnest, and encouraging, and were received with decided approbation. He concluded by an earnest appeal to teachers to be faithful in discharging their duty to others, while at the same time educating themselves that the world might be the better for their having lived in it.

Mr. Woodruff followed on the same subject, with some interesting remarks, containing some very decided hits at some of the popular errors in the system of instruction at present pursued in many instances.

WEDNESDAY MORNING.

The exercises were opened with prayer, by Prof. Guss. The roll being called,

Mr. Woodruff addressed the Convention on the subject of school management. He urged the importance of teachers making the acquaintance of every family in the district as early as possible, they securing the friendship and co-operation of parents, and also of securing the confidence of pupils in their honesty and willingness to do right.

Mrs. Shoemaker, of Philadelphia, introduced the subject of Elocution and Reading. She spoke of the importance of proper ventilation, explained the mechanism of the vocal organs, recommending strongly the practice of vocal gymnastics.

The remainder of the morning session was occupied by Mr. Woodruff on the subject of Orthography.

Afternoon.—Prof. A. S. Manson presented his method of teaching penmanship, with his usual ability, eliciting much attention and interest.

Mr. Woodruff resumed his remarks on school management. He urged the necessity of the teacher being himself, in order to succeed, and not attempting to imitate others.

Mrs. Shoemaker resumed the subject of Reading, elucidating her method of teaching primary classes. She urged the importance of brevity, and thorough mastering of the lesson, requiring pupils to pronounce the words of a sentence both forward and backward, as well as off the book.

Evening Session.—An address on the importance of History as a study, was delivered by Mr. A. R. McCarthy. The subject was ably presented. History, he said, should form a connecting link between the Common School Studies, and higher branches of literature. It should not be confined to that of the United States but extend to that of foreign countries.

Mrs. Shoemaker then entertained the audience, by reading in her own peculiar and fascinating style a number of selected pieces, including "Will the New Year come to-night, Mamma," "Hiawatha," and others. Her reading was listened to with attention and greeted with applause.

Hon. J. P. Wickersham, State Superintendent, was then introduced, and addressed the Convention at some length, and with his usual ability, on the importance of educating the masses of the people, and the means best adapted to this end. His remarks were forcible, eloquent and convincing, and were received with enthusiasm and applause by the audience.

THURSDAY MORNING.

The exercises were opened with a repetition of the Lord's Prayer in concert led by Mr. Woodruff, who then resumed his instructions on school management, dwelling specially upon the importance of teaching pupils good manners.

Prof. E. Brooks, Principal of the State Normal School at Millersville, was introduced, and entertained the audience most agreeably and profitably on the subject of Arithmetic, including an illustration of the "Metric System." The lecture of Prof. Brooks was followed by a discussion in regard to the relative value of the Mathematics, Metaphysics, and Literature, which was participated in by Messrs. Pennypacker, Brooks, Woodruff, and Fisher.

Mrs. Shoemaker resumed the subject of Elocution and Reading, and drilled the teachers present on the elementary sounds of the language.

Mr. Wickersham, addressed the Convention on the subject of teaching in all its relations. He regarded it as a science, and regulated by fixed laws It was not yet sufficiently understood to make it a perfect science. He spoke of the importance of knowing where to begin in the instruction of a child, and the beautiful relation existing between mind and matter.

Afternoon.—The subject of Arithmetic was resumed by Prof. Brooks, who illustrated a very simple and logical method of teaching Notation and Numeration, theories for the form of the Arabic character, together with some practical instruction on the elements of the science.

Prof. Green then entertained the audience with some choice music, vocal and instrumental.

Mr. Fisher, County Superintendent of Bedford County, being introduced, addressed the Institute on the subject of Grammar. He recommended that pupils be taught to point out the different parts of speech in the reading lesson, rather than teaching from the book.

Mr. Woodruff followed on the same subject. He also favored the introduction of a series of oral exercises before the use of a text book.

Evening Session.—An interesting, instructive and able lecture, on the subject of Education and the duty of the Teacher, was delivered by R. Milton Speer, Esq., at the close of which a vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturer.

Prof. Brooks, then delivered a highly entertaining lecture on "The Culture of the Imagination."

Mrs. Shoemaker entertained the very large and attentive audience by reading selections, amongst which were "The Sacrifice of Abraham," "Barbara Freitchie," "The Raven," and "Mrs. Caudle's Lecture on Buttons."

After a piece of Music by Prof. Green and others, the Institute adjourned.

FRIDAY MORNING.

Mr. Woodruff lectured on School Government, in which he urged the importance of goodness of heart on the part of the teacher, as well as the cultivation of cheerfulness of disposition in order to impart life and energy to his school.

Mrs. Shoemaker instructed the Institute on the subject of reading, dwelling principally on Articulation and Modulation. She concluded by reading "Sheridan's Ride," which was received with demonstrations of applause.

After a short recess, Mr. Fisher resumed the subject of Grammar, illustrating a rational and easy method of teaching the elements to beginners.

Afternoon.—Mr. Woodruff presented the subject of spelling and definitions. He spoke of the method of committing the definitions to memory as inefficient, the definitions given being more difficult than the words defined.

Mr. Fisher followed on the same subject. He recommended the study of Etymology, and would require pupils to commit the definitions of prefixes and suffixes.

After a recess of a few minutes the subject was resumed by Mr. Fisher. He instructed the Institute in regard to Clark's method of analyzing sentences by means of diagrams.

Mr. Woodruff conducted an exercise in the pronunciation of difficult words in common use, requiring the teachers to name and spell such words as they found difficult to pronounce.

Evening.—Mr. Fisher delivered a very able and well prepared lecture on "School Reform."

P. M. Sangree, Esq., read an able and elaborate Essay on "The Teachers Vocation."

Mr. Woodruff delivered a brief parting address, congratulating the teachers on the success of the Convention, and admonishing them to be faithful in the path of duty.

Mrs. Shoemaker read the "Ode to the Passions," "Bingen on the Rhine," "The Famine," from Hiawatha, &c.

On motion of W. H. Sheeder, a rising vote of thanks was tendered to the lecturers and instructors for services during the Convention.

SATURDAY MORNING.

Mr. T. W. McClain of Philadelphia was introduced and proceeded, at the request of the county Superintendent, to instruct the Institute upon the subject of Geography and the use of the globes, demonstrating the change of Seasons, day and night and other phenomena.

The roll was called, the teachers present rising and responding in an appropriate sentiment.

Mr. Tussey, County Superintendent then addressed the teachers present, in a few pertinent remarks, thanking them for their attendance and co operation, and expressing the hope that future meetings might be productive of greater success. He also expressed his thanks to the editorial fraternity for favors, and assistance.

R. McDivitt, on the part of the press, returned his thanks to the Secretaries for the full and accurate record of the proceedings furnished, proffering to the Institute the gratuitous publication of all matters pertaining to the public interest.

R. M. Speer, Esq., at the close of the session, and in behalf of the citizens of the place delivered a brief, but very appropriate and touching address congratulating the Convention upon the good already accomplished and bidding them God speed in the good work.

The Convention then adjourned.

No Paper Next Week.

As usual the hands employed in the printing offices of town want a few days for pleasure, like other peop'e, and intend to keep the Holidays. No paper will be issued next week.

☞Our Carrier will be on hand with his address, on New Year's morning.

☞The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. will give excursion tickets from Monday, December 23d, to Saturday, January 4th.

☞Wall paporing can be done as well in the winter as summer. Beautiful new styles just seceived at Lewis' Book Store.

☞The Pennsylvania Railroad Co. have just erected a fine frame warehouse, with ticket office and passonger room therein, at Mapleton station, this county.

☞A German woman on the emigrant train gave birth to a child between Newton Hamilton and Mount Union, one day last week. The mother stopped with the little passenger at a hotel in Mt. Union. It lived only two days.

☞Before purchasing articles for use and present during the holidays, we would suggest to our readers to consult the advertising columns of this paper. It should be the object of every man, woman and child, to patronize home trade and industry.

☞We invite attention of dealers to card of E. McGraw & Co., Pittsburg. Our friend J. S. Berkstresser, of Coalmont, is an agent for the firm, who will be pleased to take orders, and guarantee all goods to give satisfaction.

Poisoned.

Miss McGarvey, aged about eleven years, a daughter of Mr. Thomas McGarvey, of Mill Creek, recently swallowed a gun-cap, which poisoned her, and before any antidote could be administered, resulted in her death.

Good Things for the Holidays.

Everybody can find something good at Lewis' Family Grocery. Dried Fruits, Canned Fruits, Vegetables, Oysters, Cranberries, Candies in great variety, &c., &c., &c. Also toys for the children.

☞The town was well crowded last week with sleds and sleighs. Everybody appeared to enjoy the snow. The Teachers Institute was a grand success—the best ever held in the county. Mr. Tussey, Superintendent, deserves and receives great praise for the industry and labor in making it a success.

Religious.

The Rev. A. J. Barrow will preach in the Episcopal Church, this place, on Christmas night, a sermon suitable to the occasion, at 7½ o'clock. There will be services on the following Sabbath, morning and afternoon, at the usual hours. The Church has been decorated for the occasion.

Sudden Death.

We learn that a gentleman, who was recently married in the town of Delphi, Indiana, came to Bloody Run, Bedford county, on a wedding tour. He was there only a few days, with his wife, when he was suddenly attacked with typhoid fever, and died. On Friday last his corpse was taken in a coffin to his relatives. How truly can we say: "In the midst of life we are in death!"

Circulating Library.

It affords us pleasure to announce that J. C. Blair, proprietor of the Huntingdon Circulating Library, has now permanently established that desired institution, and is prepared to furnish the reading community with an opportunity to converse with all the authors, past and present, for a moderate compensation. For terms, and inducements, see his advertisement.

☞Rev. J. S. Kieffer, pastor of the German Reformed congregation of this place, preached his farewell sermon on Sunday evening last. He has gone to take the charge at Hagerstown, Md.—During the short period he has been in our midst he won many friends by his genial demeanor, many admirers by his able discourses, and withal, was the means of building up the church with which he was connected.

Rev. Mr. Sykes, Professor of the Westmoreland University, will preach in the church next Sabbath evening.

Fast Piece of Business.

"A subscriber" in Alexandria sends us the following item, which may be of interest to shoemakers hereabouts and elsewhere:

I have been told by Dr. G. W. Hewitt that D. S. Henderson, of this place, one day last week, commenced cutting out a pair of boots for him (Dr. Hewitt) at quarter past two o'clock, and made and finished them by half past nine of the same day—making them in seven hours and a quarter. Can that be beaten in the cordwainer ring?

Robberies.

Our town is again infested with thieves, and the consequence we have to chronicle some bold robberies committed by them. On Saturday night last a party of them made an attack upon the grocery of Mr. John Hagey, on Washington street, but after battering the door, they found entrance impregnable and left. Either they or another set made a more successful entry the same night into the shoe shop of Mr. Lewis Richter, from whence they decamped with several pairs of boots. We would caution our citizens to be on the look-out for the thieves, and give them a warm reception.

☞New Styles of Wall Paper for 1868, now arriving at Lewis' Book Store.

☞Toys for the children at Lewis' Family Grocery.

COURT AFFAIRS.

PROCLAMATION.—WHEREAS, by a precept to me directed, dated at Huntingdon, the 23d of November, A. D. 1867, under the hands and seal of the Hon. George Taylor, President of the Court of Common Pleas, Oyer and Terminer, and general Jail delivery of the 24th Judicial District of Pennsylvania, composed of Huntingdon, Blair and Cambria counties; and the Hons. Anthony J. Beaver and David Clarkson, his associates, Judges of the county of Huntingdon, justices assigned, appointed to hear, try and determine all and every indictments made or taken for or concerning all crimes, which by the laws of the State are made capital, or felonies of death, and other offences, crimes and misdemeanors, which have been or shall hereafter be committed or perpetrated, for crimes aforesaid—I am commanded to make public proclamation throughout my whole bailiwick, that a Court of Oyer and Terminer, of Common Pleas and Quarter Sessions, will be held at the Court House in the borough of Huntingdon, on the second Monday (and 13th day) of JANUARY, and those who will prosecute the said prisoners, be then and there to prosecute them as it shall be just, and that all Justices of the Peace, Coroner and Constables within said county, be then and there in their proper persons, at 10 o'clock, a. m. of said day, with their records, inquisitions, examinations and remembrances, to do those things which to their offices respectively appertain.

Dated at Huntingdon, the 15th December, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and sixty-seven, and the 91st year of American Independence.

JAS. F. BATHURST, Sheriff.

Leap Year.

With the advent of 1868, comes Leap Year, and this suggests to our minds, whether it would be proper to leap out of the frying pan into the fire? Whether it is safe to "leap in the dark?" Whether it would not be well to "look before you leap?" Whether it is politic to "leap at a conclusion?" Whether it is etiquette for young lady to leap into the arms of a handsome dry-goods clerk, just because "the cat scared her so?" Whether it would be policy for the said clerk to "leap to the rear," and not embrace the—opportunity? Whether it would be more than right if our young men were to—not leap—but just walk into Lewis' Book Store and purchase a nice Christmas present for some "fair friend?" They will there find a supply suitable for just such a purpose. Call around.

MEDICAL ELECTRICITY

BY

DR. WILLIAM BREWSTER,

M'CONNELLSTOWN, PA.

For the benefit of those proposing to undertake Electrical treatment for diseases we give in the following list a few of the more prominent and most common complaints met with in our practice, in all of which we are most successful. IN NEARLY ALL CASES OF CHRONIC DISEASE, ELECTRICITY IS A SURE REMEDY, AND IN ALL CASES BENEFICIAL IF PROPERLY APPLIED. Those, therefore, afflicted with complaints not here enumerated, need have no hesitation in applying and whether only RELIEF, or a PERMANENT CURE can be effected, they will receive replies accordingly. All communications free.

1 Epilepsy, Chorea, St. Vitus' Dance, Paralysis, Neuralgia, Hysteria, Nervousness, Palpitation of the Heart, Lock-Jaw, etc.
2 Sore Throat, Dyspepsia, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Obstinate Constipation, Hemorrhoids, or Piles, Bilious, Flatulent, and Painful Colic, and all affections of the Liver and Spleen.
3 Catarrh, Cough, Influenza, Asthma, (where not caused by organic disease of the heart,) Bronchitis, Pleurisy, Rheumatism of the Chest, Consumption in the early stages.
4 Gravel, Diabetis, and Kidney Complaints.
5 Rheumatism, Gout, Lumbago, Stiff Neck, Spinal Diseases, Hip Diseases, Cancers, Tumors (these last named always cured without pain, or cutting, or plasters in any form)

In a word, we propose to cure all curable diseases.

We have no connection whatever with any other Electrical office in this or any other county All letters address to

No more Bald Heads!
No more Gray Locks!

DR. LEON'S

ELECTRIC HAIR RENEWER,

Is pronounced by all who have used it the very best preparation for the Hair. It is a positive cure for Baldness, eradicates Dandruff and Humors, stops the hair from falling out, and speedily restores Gray Locks to their original hue and luxuriance.

It operates on the secretions and fills the glands with new life and coloring matter. Thin, dead, faded or gray hair will always be brought back by a few applications, to its youthful abundance, vitality and color.

It makes the hair soft, glossy, fragrant, pleasant to the touch and easy to arrange. Dry, wiry and intractable locks become moist, pliant and disposed to remain in any desired position. As a Hair Dressing it has no equal. The sales are enormous and it is a universal favorite with old and young of both sexes.

Sold by Druggists throughout the United States. Address all orders to

ENERGETIC MEN AND LADIES

WANTED to Canvass for the

ORIGIN AND HISTORY OF THE

BOOKS OF THE BIBLE,

BY PROF. CALVIN E. STOWE, D. D.

Showing what the Bible is not; what it is, and how to use it; tracing the history of each book up to its origin with the inspired authors, and completely answering all infidel cavils and objections to the Scriptures. It is an ordinary library of Biblical History in a single volume, brief, clear, accurate, conclusive and highly interesting. A master-piece of common sense. It is needed in every family where the Bible is read, as well as by every Sabbath School teacher, student and clergyman, and being the only book on the subject ever published or sold in this country, agents can easily see the advantage of canvassing for this work. Send for circulars containing notices and indorsements from leading ministers of all denominations. Address

ZIEGLER, McCURDY & CO.,

ANY of the above articles can be had by addressing the subscriber. Stoves of all kinds and sizes to suit the wants of all.

We call the attention of the public to the a stove beyond competition. It is a pretty pattern, good baker, with large oven, and suitable for either coal or wood. Stoves furnished at foundry prices. Any person wishing to purchase a stove without cooking utensils can do so, and the prices of all the articles will be deducted. All stoves warranted. Samples can be seen at Mr. Hughe's store, Mill Creek, or at the residence of the subscriber.

All parlor stoves furnished at low prices. Stoves delivered at any railroad station.

CHEAP WOODEN PUMPS.

The merit of these pumps is shown by the fact that the demand for them is rapidly increasing everywhere. There is no iron in them to corrode and injure the water. They are light and convenient, so that every man can put in his own pump, the whole only costing him about one half the price of other pumps. Pumps, and wooden pipe to suit them, promptly shipped by railroad on receipt of orders. Give depth from floor to bottom of well.

STEVENS HOUSE,

21, 23, 25, & 27 BROADWAY, N. Y.

OPPOSITE BOWLING GREEN.

ON THE EUROPEAN PLAN.

The STEVENS HOUSE is well and widely known to the travelling public. The location is especially suitable to merchants and business men: it is in close proximity to the business part of the city—to the highway of Southern and Western travel—and adjacent to all the principal Railroad and Steamboat depots.

THE STEVENS HOUSE has liberal accommodations for over 300 guests—it is well furnished, and possesses every modern improvement for the comfort and entertainment of its inmates. The rooms are spacious and well ventilated—provided with gas and water—the attendance is prompt and respectful—and the table is generously provided with every delicacy of the season—at moderate rates. The rooms having been refurnished and remodeled, we are enabled to offer extra facilities for the comfort and pleasure of our Guests.

THE CHEAPEST AND BEST ARTICLE OUT.

A PERFECT TIME-PIECE FOR ONE DOLLAR.

Let every Housekeeper, Farmer, Mechanic, and Traveller buy our

SOLAR WATCH,

or Perpetual Portable Sun-Dial.

Warranted to keep True Time for every Day of the Year

This valuable instrument, which is warranted by us to give the true time of day throughout the year, is constructed on strictly scientific principles, being based on astronomical tables and calculations, and affording the truest measure of time which human ingenuity and skill can devise exceeding in accuracy and reliability the most perfect chronometers, whilst the low price at which we offer it to the public places it within the reach of all. Its portability makes it convenient for travelers, and to every farmer or householder it must prove invaluable to regulate their clocks and watches by the most infallible test recognized by science.

The mode of using the "Solar Watch" is the simplest that can be devised. After screwing the Style or Gnomon in its place in the moveable brass head and setting it directly over the straight line corresponding to the date, or that nearest to it on the cylinder, the instrument is placed upright in the sunshine in such a position as will throw the shadow of the style directly upon the line under it. After placing the plumb-line, by means of its brass attachment, at a right angle with and to the left of the Style, in order to set the cylinder perfectly level, the point where the extremity of the shadow falls, and its distance from any of the wavy or cross lines exhibiting the morning and corresponding afternoon hours, will indicate the true time of day.

The whole apparatus, consisting of a Cylinder and Diagram, moveable brass Head, Style, Plumb line, and Brass attachment for the same, neatly put up in compact boxes, is sold by us at the incredibly low price of ONE DOLLAR. Manufactured and sold, wholesale and retail, by
